To Major General Wager Swayne, Assistant Commissioner:

General: You are hereby directed to send a bonded officer to make the purchase of subsistence stores, in accordance with the accompanying recommendation and order of the Secretary of War dated September 28, 1866. These purchases may be made from the Commissary Department proper, if corn and bacon are on hand in convenient depots. You yourself will be held responsible for the issue and will established such regulations as will secure the provisions to the absolutely necessitous and suffering. You as soon as possible a copy of said regulations.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
O. O. HOWARD,
Major General, Commissioner.

Destruction and Outrages.

Mr. Dicey, of New York, who is with the company he kept, retained some of the obsolete and old fashioned idea of republican government. In November 1862, he wrote as follows to Gov. Gay Shipley of Louisiana:

"Dr. Kennedy has some apprehension that Federal officers, not citizens of Louisiana, may be candidates for Congress in the next election. In my view, there would be no valid objection to such a selection. * * *
